Warren G. Harding Becomes Nation's Chief As He Kisses Bible Used at Inauguration of George Washington

Brief and Simple Ceremonies Witnessed Great Throngs Gathered at Capitol for the Occasion

WASHINGTON—(By Associated Press)—Warren G. Harding, of Ohio, became president of the United States at 1:18 today when he took the oath of office, pressing his lips to the historic Bible used at the inauguration of George Washington. The oath was administered by Chief Justice White, who chose the eighth verse from the sixth chapter of Micah, saying:

"What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly and to love mercy and walk humbly with thy God."

Immediately after the administration of the oath, Mr. Harding turned to the vast crowd which stretched across the capitol plaza and began the delivery of his inaugural address.

Despite the abandonment of the inaugural procession and other ceremonies, there were many marching clubs, boosters' clubs and "original" Harding organizations on hand.

A great many of them came from Ohio.

Dozens of sleeping cars which brought special parties to the inauguration were parked in the railroad yards and their passengers were permitted to occupy them as living places.

The day's program was officially opened with the arrival of the congressional inauguration committee at the new Willard at 9:50 a. m. The committee was headed by Senator Knox, of Pennsylvania, as chairman and included among the members Representative Cannon, of Illinois, former speaker of the house.

President Harding was inaugurated with ceremonies as simple as those the historians have described in chronicling the induction into office of George Washington more than a century ago.

Had Mr. Harding's personal wishes been adhered to strictly, the ceremonies would have been more simple, but the congressional inauguration committee made some arrangements on its own account. These included a cavalry escort of four troops for the President in his ride from his hotel to the capitol and thence to the White House.

This little cavalcade contrasted strangely with the great military and civic processions which have attended inaugurations for half a century.

OF HONOR

Besides the cavalry escort, the congressional committee also had arranged to have several companies of Marines in full dress uniform at the capitol as a guard of honor and for the President of the Marine Band.

The President's own "Star Spangled Banner" was played after Mr. Harding had taken the oath of office.

The very simplicity of the ceremonies on the east portico of the capitol added to their impressive nature. Simple and impressive were those in senate chamber, where President Harding was sworn in by Mr. Coolidge in turn swore into office the new senators elected last November.

The day's ceremonies began with formal calls on the President-elect at the new Willard hotel by the congressional inauguration committee, headed by Senator Knox, of Pennsylvania.

THE NEW PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

WILSON, LAWYER, SURPRISES

Country Thought He Would Rest. Write

WASHINGTON—(By Associated Press).—Woodrow Wilson leaves the White House today to resume the role of a private citizen and again take up the practice of law—a profession in which he has not been active for forty years. With Bainbridge Colby, the retiring secretary of state, the retiring president has formed a partnership and the new firm will maintain offices in New York and Washington.

Mr. Wilson's announcement that he would take up the law again came as a surprise to all Washington which had been led to believe that for the next few months at least, he would go in for a life of rest and recreation, and then probably pursue, in some unannounced way, his work for world peace.

It was thought, too, that the outgoing president would take up the business of literature which he left off when he quit the presidency of Princeton University to enter politics and become governor of New Jersey.

Trailing in health with his body racked by eighteen months of illness, it had been supposed by Mr. Wilson's closest friends that he planned nothing else than rest. But Rear Admiral Grayson, his personal physician, says he is able to take up legal work and could even possibly appear before the supreme court of the United States, to which the retiring president soon will make application for admission to practice.

Oath Which Made Harding President

WASHINGTON.—The oath of office of President as administered today by the Chief Justice of the United States, Edward Douglass White, follows:

"I, Warren Gamaliel Harding, do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

DEMANDS CHANGE PLANS FOR WAR ON PANAMA RUSHED

Suit Filed by Ohio Veteran, Now Congressman

COLUMBUS—(By Associated Press).—Claiming irregularity in his discharge from the army early in 1918, General C. Speaks, who became congressman from the 12th (Franklin-co) district today, has filed suit in the supreme court of the District of Columbia, seeking to compel the secretary of war to change the records of that department in accordance with the facts as he speaks them.

At Washington last night, Speaks is reported to have announced that he had been told by Secretary Baker that President Wilson knew nothing of the affair, and that while he had been given an honorable discharge, "the impression was given that there was some dereliction on my part."

At the time of his discharge, Speaks was brigadier general with the 37th (Ohio National Guard) division.

WASHINGTON—(By United Press)—A solemn warning that America stands ready to resist any attempted reversion of civilization was sounded by President Warren G. Harding, in his inaugural address today.

America, he said, seeks no part in directing the destinies of the old world, but she is ready to enter an association of nations for conference and counsel, which will not impair the sovereignty of the United States.

He declared flatly against permanent military alliances. "Our eyes will never be blind to a developing menace, our ears never deaf to the call of civilization," he said.

"There was no American failure to resist the attempted reversion of civilization, there will be no failure today or tomorrow," Harding added later.

"We shall give no people just cause to make war upon us," he said at another point, "we hold no national prejudices, we entertain no spirit of revenge, we do not hate, we do not covet, we dream of no conquest, nor boast of armed prowess."

"If, despite this attitude, war is forced upon us, I earnestly hope a way may be found which will unify our individual and

PRESIDENT AND MRS. HARDING

HARDING PUTS GREAT VALUE ON HIS LUCK-CHARM

WASHINGTON — (By Associated Press) — Whatever else he may be, Warren G. Harding, always classifies himself as an editor, publisher and printer, proud of his professional accomplishments and training. His luck-charm and most sacred possession is a printer's rule, carried to his pocket wherever he goes; and his close friends say he would rather set a stick of type any day than grant an audience to an ambassador. For more than 30 years Mr. Harding's bread and butter has been earned by the Marion Star, whose responsibilities he assumed under heavy mortgage and whose early years he nourished at the expense of going hungry more than once. Since his nomination for the Presidency he has faced only one public ordeal that aroused emotions he could not master. That was the temporary severance of the ties that bind him to the Star. On election night, when a group of his employees came to congratulate him, his voice broke and his big frame was shaken with sobs, when he undertook to speak of the separation that must "be the price" of his triumph.

BIRED AS REPORTER

Election day was Mr. Harding's 55th birthday, and all the interests of his long lifetime had been rooted in the immediate vicinity of Marion, Ohio, in an adjoining county, the son of a country doctor, George T. Harding, who still visits his patients about Marion in the one-horse carriage of the old-school practitioner. The new President's mother has been dead for many years and his father is remarried.

Young Harding attended college at Iberia, Ohio, and then at school teaching for a year before he began his newspaper career. Always a partisan and a Republican, he lost his job as a reporter by wearing in the presence of his Democratic editor a "blue hat," the stove-pipe which was a badge of support of James G. Blaine.

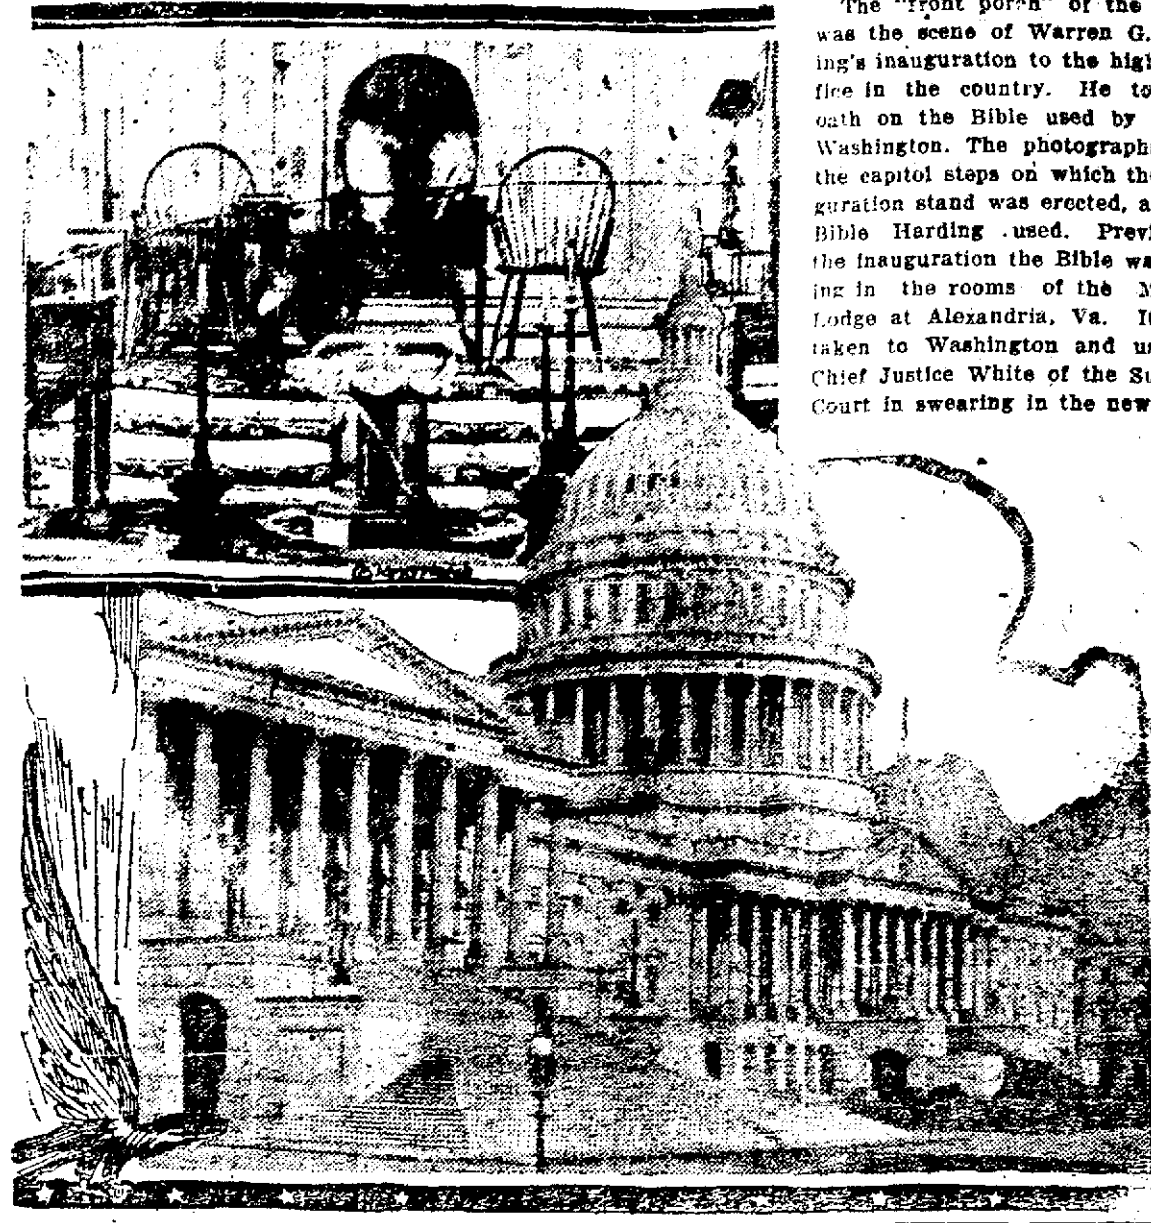

PROGRESSIVE NOTIONS

Altho it was a pioneer newspaper, Mr. Harding's mind ran to progressive notions even in the days when the Star still drew a liability. He broke with his first partner over the question of installing a telephone in the newspaper office, a proposal which the partner held to be impractical, extravagant and revolutionary. Altho he remains a controlling financial interest in the Star, Mr. Harding will occupy but a titular relationship to it during his Presidency.

Three times before he has held public office. He served in the Ohio legislature and as lieutenant governor of the state, and six years ago he was elected to the United States Senate where he became a member of the Foreign Relations Committee. In 1915 he was chairman of the Republican national convention.

In personal appearance the new President is a man to attract a second look in any crowd. He carries his 210 pounds without a hint of obesity, altho he is not quite six feet tall; and his massive features round out an impression of force and distinction. His hair is iron gray—almost silver gray—making sharp contrast with the unusually heavy black eyebrows that almost mask a pair of calm grey eyes. It is only in repose that his face takes on the aspect of severity seen so often in his photographs. When he talks or listens, the lines are broken by a teaching for a year before he began

WHERE INAUGURATION TOOK PLACE AND BIBLE USED

The "front porch" of the capitol was the scene of Warren G. Harding's inauguration to the highest office in the country. He took his oath on the Bible used by George Washington. The photographs show the capitol steps on which the inauguration stand was erected, also the Bible Harding used. Previous to the inauguration the Bible was resting in the rooms of the Masonic lodge at Alexandria, Va. It was taken to Washington and used by Chief Justice White of the Supreme Court in swearing in the new president.

VICE PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

"SILENT CAL," CITY SOLD TO VICE-PRESIDENCY

WASHINGTON — (By Associated Press) — Calvin Coolidge is the first Massachusetts man to hold the office of vice-president since Henry Wilson served in the second Grant administration, nearly half a century ago. His advent into office adds to the prominence of his state in national government affairs for it is regarded as almost certain that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge will be again chosen as Republican leader in the Senate, and Republican Frederick H. Gillett having already been chosen as speaker of the House.

With Mr. Gillett in the chair, a Massachusetts man will preside over each branch of congress, a most unusual coincidence. More unusual still is the fact that both Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Gillett come from the same Congressional District, Northampton, the home of the vice-president being in the same district as Springfield, the home of the speaker. Both men are graduates of Amherst College.

POLITICAL CLIMB

Vice-President Coolidge is entering upon his first service in the field of national politics, but for 20 years he has been active in the political service of his state, rising from membership in the council of his city to governor of the commonwealth.

In some respects Mr. Coolidge is a figure strange in American public life, being taciturn to a degree and apparently shunning the spotlight and the glamor which usually surrounds high public officials. To his most intimate friends he is known as "Silent Cal." It is related in illustration of this characteristic that a personal and political friend who had conferred with him in his Executive offices at Boston without receiving more than monosyllabic collective strength and consecrate all America materially and spiritually, body and soul to national defense.

"I can vision the ideal republic, where every man and woman is called under the flag, for assignment to duty, for whatever service, military or civic, the individual is best fitted; where we may call to universal service every plant, agency or facility, all in the sublime sacrifice for country, and not one penny of war profit shall inure to the benefit of private individual, corporation or combination, but all above the normal shall flow into the defense chest of the nation."

The tongue of nations was not ratiocated, but schemes of "super-government" were unsparingly denounced.

The new executive pledged himself to recommend a way to approximate disarmament and expressed a desire to join with other nations in plans for mediation, conciliation and arbitration, clarification of international law and establishment of a world court.

But aside from this general international program, President Harding played his home on a new era of the Golden Rule, which should be crowned with the autonomy of service.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS

The text of President Warren G. Harding's inaugural address follows: My Countrymen, when one surveys the world about him, after the storm, noting the marks of destruction and the things which withstood it, if he is an American he breathes the clar-threatened, we find them now secure and serene. To Americans the profound assurance that our representative government is the highest expression and surest guaranty of both.

Standing in this presence, mindful of the solemnity of this occasion, feeling the emotions which no one may know until he senses the great weight of responsibility for himself, I must utter my belief in the divine inspiration of the forefathers.

Surely there have been good intent in the making of the new world republic. Ours is an organic law, which has but one ambiguity, and we saw that effaced in the baptism of sacrifice and blood, with union maintaining the nation supreme. We have seen the world pivot its hopeful gaze on the great truths on which the founders wrought. We have seen civil, human and religious liberty verified and glorified. In the beginning, the old world scoffed at our experiment, today our foundations of political and social belief stands unshaken, a precious inheritance to ourselves, an inspiring example of freedom and civilization to all mankind. Let us exalt in that achievement, strengthened devotion, in the grateful reverence for the immortal beginning and utter our confidence in the supreme fulfillment.

PROGRESS PROVES WISDOM

The reported progress of our republic, materially and spiritually, in itself, proves the wisdom of the invited policy of non-involvement in old world affairs. Confidence of our ability to work out our own destiny and jealously guarding our right to do so, we seek no part in directing the destinies of the old world. We do not mean to be entangled. We will accept no responsibility except as our own conscience and judgment in each instance may determine.

Our own eyes never will be blind to a developing menace, our ears never deaf to a call of civilization. We recognize the new order in the world with the closer contacts which progress has wrought. We sense the call of the human heart fellowship, fraternity and cooperation. We crave following and hatred no hate, but America, our America, the America built on the foundation laid by the inspired forefathers; can be a party to no permanent military alliance. It can enter into no political commitments, nor assume any economic obligations which will subject our decisions to any other than our own vision.

I am sure our own people will not misunderstand, nor will the world, misconstrue. We have no thought to impede the paths to closer relationship. We wish to promote understanding. We want to do our part in making offensive warfare so hateful that governments and peoples who resort to it must prove the righteousness of their cause or stand as outlaws before the bar of civilization.

ASSOCIATION FOR COUNSEL

We are ready to associate ourselves with the nations of the world, great and small, for conference, for counsel, to seek the expressed views of world opinion, to recommend a way for approximate disarmament and relieve the crushing burdens of military and naval establishments. We elect to participate in such plans for mediation, conciliation and arbitration, and would gladly join in that expressed confidence of progress, which seeks to clarify and refine the laws of international relationship and establish a world court for the disposition of such justiciable questions as nations are agreed to submit thereto. In expressing aspirations, in seeking practical plans and in translating humanity's new concept of righteousness and justice and in its hatred of war into recommended action, we are ready most heartily to unite, but every commitment must be made in the exercise of our national sovereignty. Since freedom impelled an independence inspired and nationally exalted, a world super-government is contrary to everything we cherish and can have no sanction by our republic. This is not selfishness, it is sanctity. It is not aloofness, it is security. It is not suspicion of others, it is patriotic adherence to the things which made us what we are.

Mankind needs a world-wide benediction of understanding. It is needed among individuals, among peoples, among governments, and it will inaugurate an era of good feeling to mark the birth of a new order. In such understanding men will strive confidently for the promotion of their better relationships and nations will promote the comities so essential to peace.

TRADE TIES BIND CLOSELY

We must understand that ties of trade bind nations in closest intimacy and none may receive except as he gives. We have not strengthened ours in accordance with our resources or our genius, notably on our own continent, where a galaxy of republics reflect the glory of new world democracy, but in the new order of finance, and trade, we mean to promote enlarged activities and seek confidence.

Perhaps we can make no more helpful contribution by example than prove a republic's chance to emerge from the wreckage of war. While the world's embittered travail did not leave us devastated lands, nor desolate cities, left no gaping wounds, no breast filled with hate, it did involve us in the delirium of expenditure, it expanded currency and credits, it unbalanced industry, in unspokeable waste and disturbed relationships. While it uncovered our portion of hateful selfishness at home, it also revealed the heart of America as sound and fearless and beating in confidence unflinching.

Amid it all, we have riveted the gaze of all civilization to the usefulness and the righteousness of representative democracy, where our freedom never has made offensive warfare, never has sought territorial aggrandizement thru force, never has turned to the arbitrament of arms until reason had been exhausted. When the governments of the earth shall have established a freedom like our own and shall have sanctioned the pursuit of peace, as we have practiced, I believe the last sorrow and the final sacrifice of international warfare will have been written.

OUR SUPREME TASK

Our supreme task is the resumption of our onward normal way. Reconstruction, re-adjustment, restoration—all of these must follow. I would like to hasten them. It will lighten the spirit and add to the resolution with which we take up the task, let me repeat for our own encouragement, that we will not come to make war upon us, we will not national prejudices, we entertain no spirit of revenge, we do not hate, we do not covet, we dream of no conquest, nor boast of armed prowess.

If, despite this attitude, war is again forced upon us, I earnestly hope a way may be found, which will unify our individual and collective strength and consecrate all America, materially and spiritually, body and soul, to national defense. I can vision the ideal republic, where every man and woman is called under the flag, for assignment to duty, for whatever service, military or civic, the individual is best fitted, where we may call to universal service for country and not one penny of war profit shall inure to the benefit of private individual, corporation or combination, but all above the normal shall flow into the defense chest of the nation. There is something inherently wrong, something out of accord with the ideals of representative democracy when one portion of our citizenship turns its activities to private gain amid defensive war, while another is fighting, sacrificing or dying for national preservation.

UNITY OF SPIRIT AND PURPOSE

Out of such universal service will come a new unity of spirit and purpose, a new confidence and consecration, which will make our defense impregnable, our triumph assured. Then we shall have little or no disruption of our economic, industrial and commercial systems at home, no staggering war debts, no swollen fortunes to flout the sacrifices of our soldiers, no excuse for sedition, no pitiable slackness, no outrage of treason. Envy and jealousy would have no soil for their menacing development and revolution would be without the passion which engenders it.

A regret for the mistakes of yesterday must not blind us to the tasks of today. War never left such an aftermath. There has been staggering loss of life and measureless waste of materials. Nations are still groping for return to stable ways. Discouraging indebtedness confronts us, like all the war-torn nations and for. No one can reduce the obligations must be provided for. We can reduce the obligations must be provided for. We can reduce the obligations must be provided for.

prayer for industrial peace. I wish for an America no less alert in guarding against dangers from within than it is watchful against enemies from without. Our fundamental law recognizes no class, no group, no section, there must be none in legislation or administration. The supreme inspiration is the common weal.

Humanity hungers for international peace, and we crave it with all mankind. My most fervent prayer for America is for industrial peace, with its rewards, widely and generally distributed amid the inspirations of equal opportunity. No one justly may deny the equality of opportunity which made us what we are. We have mistaken unpreparedness to be a challenge of the reality,

Prices must reflect the receding fever of war activities. We must seek the readjustment with care and courage. Our people must rise and take. Prices must reflect their receding fever of war activities.

Perhaps we never will know the old levels of wage again, because invariably readjustments, compensations and the necessities of life will show their inseparable relationship, but we must strive for normalcy to reach stability. All the penalties will not be light nor evenly distributed. There is no way of making them so. There is no instant step from disorder to order. We must face a condition of grim reality, charge of our losses and start afresh. It is the oldest lesson of civilization. I would like government to do all it can to mitigate them in understanding, in mutual interest, in concern for the common good. No tasks will be solved.

No altered system will work a miracle. Any wild experiment will only add to the confusion. Our best assurance lies in efficient administration of our proven system.

FROM DESTRUCTION TO PRODUCTION

The forward course of the business cycle is unmistakable. Peoples are turning from destruction to production. Industry has sensed the changed order and our own people are turning to resume their normal, onward way. The call is for productive America to go on. I know that congress and the administration will favor every wise government policy to aid the resumption and encourage continued progress.

I speak for administrative efficiency, for lightened tax burdens, for sound commercial practices, for adequate credit facilities, for sympathetic concern for all agricultural problems, for the omission of unnecessary interference of government with business, for an end to government experiment in business and for more efficient business in government. With all this must attend a mindfulness of human side of all activities, so that social, industrial and economic justice will be square with the purposes of a righteous people.

With the nation-wide induction of womanhood into our political life we may count upon her intuitions, her refinements, her intelligence and her influence to exalt the social order. We count upon her exercise of the full privileges and the performance of her duties of citizenship to speed the attainment of the highest state.

PRAYER FOR INDUSTRIAL PEACE

I wish for an America no less alert in guarding against dangers from within than it is watchful against enemies from without. Our fundamental law recognizes no class, no group, no section, there must be none in legislation or administration. The supreme inspiration is the common weal.

and ever nobler, stronger and more fit for participation will give added strength of citizenship and magnify our achievements.

It revolution insists upon overturning established order, let other peoples make the tragic experiment. There is no place for it in America. When world war threatened civilization, we pledged our resources and our lives to its preservation and when revolution threatens, we untangle the flag of law and order and renew our consecration. Ours is a constitutional freedom, where the popular will is the law supreme and minorities are sacredly protected. Our revisions, reformations and evolutions reflect a deliberate judgment and an orderly progress and we mean to cure our ills but never destroy or permit destruction by force.

I had rather submit our industrial controversy to the conference table in advance than to a settlement table after conflict and suffering. The earth is thirsting for the cup of good will, understanding is its fountain source. I would like to acclaim an era of good feeling amid dependable prosperity and all the blessings which would attend.

PROTECTION OF INDUSTRIES

It has been proved again and again, that we cannot, while throwing our markets open to the world, maintain American standards of living opportunity and hold our industrial eminence in such unequal competition. There is a lurking liability in the theory of banished barriers of trade, but preserved American standards require our higher production costs to be reflected in our tariffs on imports. Today, as never before, when peoples are seeking trade restoration and expansion, we must adjust our tariffs to the new order. We seek participation in the world's changes because therein lies our way to widened influence and the triumphs of peace. We know full well we cannot sell where we do not buy and we cannot sell successfully where we do not carry. Opportunity is calling not alone for the restoration, but for a new era in production, transportation and trade. We shall answer it best by meeting the demand of a surging home market, by promoting self-reliance in production, and by bidding enterprise, genius and efficiency to carry our cargoes in American bottoms to the markets of the world.

TAXING BONDS IS OHIO MAN TAKES SALE DETRIMENT OFFICIAL OATH

Stumbling Block in Way of Plan to Float Securities

The chief difficulty encountered in selling municipal bonds, according to City Auditor Rupert is that in state of Ohio they are taxable to the extent of 2.00 per cent, whereas in most states including Indiana, Michigan and New York, they are non-taxable. The city can pay only six per cent interest under the law and with the tax rate deduction the rate is lowered to less than four per cent, which makes them almost impossible to sell at this time when other bonds are paying a much higher rate of interest. A committee from the chamber of commerce has found it impossible to interest local bankers in local municipal bonds.

Auditor Rupert says he is practically forced to sell bonds to investors outside the state where they are not taxed. Concern in Ohio must ship them to agents outside the state to escape the tax. Now that market is almost gone and it is believed that the city will have to resort to popular subscription to obtain money for construction work and an appeal to made to no more higher ground than good business, for in some city past history.

MARCH 9 IS DECREED NATIONAL FISH DAY

There will be two fish days next week. Wednesday, March 9th, has been decreed "Fish Day" by Secretary of Commerce Joshua W. Alexander, who asks that everyone eat fish for at least one meal that day. America has plenty of fish but the people here don't seem to appreciate them, according to Joshua.

less distinguished than that on the floor. It was composed of American women scarcely less known than their husbands taking part in the ceremony below, families of foreign diplomats and men and other women in the fore-front of the social life of the nation.

While the Senate was assembling for its special session, the first of the 67th Congress, the diplomatic corps was arriving and assembling in the marble room, to be escorted into the chamber.

Next came the Chief Justice and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, in the sombre black silk gowns of office, moving slowly and dignified to the places reserved for them in chairs placed in the front row facing the Vice President and at his right.

HARDING ENTERS
Immediately afterward, the members of the House of Representatives were announced. A seat had been placed on the rostrum for Speaker Gillett at the left of Vice President Marshall. The Representatives filed into the chamber to places reserved for them on the west side while the Senators were seated on the east.

President-elect Harding, escorted by the committee on arrangements, entered the Senate chamber at the main door and was escorted to the seat on the floor on the right hand side of the main aisle and facing the rostrum.

When the President takes the inaugural oath, the Chief Justice, bible in hand, steps forward; the man who is about to take oath stands beside him with raised hand. Slowly and solemnly the Chief Justice repeats the oath prescribed by the constitution. The President kisses the open bible and the ceremony is over save for the delivery of the President's inaugural address.

When that was concluded the Senate returned to its chamber for the special session called by the re-republic. If I felt that there is to be sole responsibility in the executive for the America of tomorrow, I should shrink from the burden.

But here are a hundred million with a common concern and shared responsibility, answerable to God and country. The republic summons them to their duty and I invite cooperation.

I accept my part with a single-mindedness of purpose and humility of spirit, and implore the favor and guidance of God in his Heaven. With these, I am unafraid and confidently face the future.

I have taken the solemn oath of office on that passage of Holy Writ wherein it is asked: "What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, and to love mercy, and walk humbly with thy God." This I plight to God and country.

Son, You're Looking Fine

The Most Glorious Sensation of All is to Get Back Into the Game

Ask anyone whose nerves seemed to have gone smooth and the last atom of him apparently burned out of the blood, how it feels to come back. Ask the host of men and women who have used Reolo. Here is one of the most astonishing reconstructive influences ever discovered. It is a marvel for the most worn it seems to act. And it acts almost at once. Safe, harmless, of food value, yet all medicine, it seems to have almost the quality of actual intelligence. It has the power to increase blood, it enhances the activity of the entire organism, puts iron in the blood, lots of it, increases red corpuscles enormously, takes the pallor out of the cheeks, contributes to the defense of the body against exhaustion, and intensifies the activity of the vital processes to such an extent that you not only look like a winner, you feel it from head to foot. Ask any clerk, hunter, drug store what a host of men and women have gained from this most wonderful reconstructive strengthener. Get a 100c box of Reolo today—Adv.

PREMIER MASTER AT REPORTEE

Lloyd George Has Ready Answer To Many Questions
TAKEN BY STORM AT DINNER
Enjoys Being Quizzed by Newspaper Men. However

By NEWTON C. PARKE

PARIS — Premier Lloyd George, a past master in the game of repartee, had "one of the best times of his life" as he after-dinner quizzed the Allied representatives at a dinner given in honor of the American and English correspondents the night before the opening of the conference of the Allied Supreme Council at the Hotel Crillon when he took his seat in the center of the speakers' table and ordered a cigar and glass of brandy. Every one of them had a pet question.

But the British Prime Minister faced more than forty newspapermen at the Hotel Crillon when he took his seat in the center of the speakers' table and ordered a cigar and glass of brandy. Every one of them had a pet question. "Mr. Prime Minister," said the first questioner, after toasts had been drunk to the King of England, the President of France and the President of the United States, "how do you get along with Premier Briand? Does he talk English?" "Well," replied Lloyd George, "he knows a few words of English, and I've picked up a little French. Then, too, I understand a little French and he understands English. That is, when he talks French I understand just as much as I want to, and I guess when I talk English he understands just as much as he wants to."

There followed a volley of questions on reparations, German's ability to pay, etc. EXPLAINS GERMANY'S POSITION "It's like this," said Lloyd George, taking a long puff at a very long cigar "Germany can't pay unless she exports goods. We don't want her goods, because it will throw Englishmen out of work. America doesn't want her goods, and if she sells them to neutrals she is competing in our markets. So, you see, gentlemen, my task is a very easy one. Only two persons can say definitely what is going to happen in Europe. One is the Almighty and I won't name the other."

He turned toward the American correspondents who thought they knew who he meant. The questioning proceeded. One man who had put more than a dozen queries to the Prime Minister, finally asked this one: "Mr. Prime Minister, what would you do if you were the present head of the German Government and?" "Just a minute," responded Lloyd George, with a trace of irritation, "would you try to advise these other gentlemen here how to write their dispatches?" "Why, yes," replied his questioner. "Then I would tell them not to take your advice," said Lloyd George. "for I would know you didn't know what you were talking about."

COBBLER HEIR TO BILLION ESTATE

Bostonian Among 3,000 Claimants—Hopes For Meal Price
BOSTON—James Barnard, sixty-eight-year-old cobbler, is an heir to a billion-dollar estate. If he gets enough out of his claim to buy himself a good supper he will be satisfied. It is not that the good-natured cobbler is so poor that he cannot buy a good meal, for he is comparatively well off. He sets the supper as a limit of his possibility of getting any of the wealth to be distributed because he admits that the ability to enjoy a real meal is one of the best gifts of God. He has the gift he says. "My family appears to have the record for large family and long living," he says. "That is why there are at least 3,000 claimants for the big estate."

fellowship and wit of the genial cobbler. Wouldn't he such a bad idea if I could get about $10,000 of that billion and use it to enlarge my store by putting in a reading room and club-room. The bunch could have shower baths in the basement and a card-room and poolroom upstairs," said Mr. Barnard.

BIXEL IS TAKEN TO BLUFFTON

Alleged Bank Wrecker Confers With Receiver Keyes

John Bixel, former president of First National Bank, Bluffton, now serving a term in the Ohio state penitentiary for embezzlement of funds from the institution, was in Lima Friday, en route to Bluffton.

Bixel was brought under guard from the penitentiary for a conference with Paul J. Keyes, receiver of the bank. He arrived in Bluffton at 12:25 o'clock and proceeded at once to the offices of Keyes directly over the room formerly occupied by the bank.

The guard announced the stay of Bixel would be short in Bluffton. The former bank president met his brother, Peter Bixel, on the street, as he was en route from the Western Ohio station to the bank building. The two shook hands cordially and Bixel laughed and talked.

The guard announced that by early evening the trip back to the penitentiary would be begun.

It Is No Longer Necessary For Stout Women Not to Be Modish

For we have discovered a material which, in the hands of a clever designer, lends itself perfectly to the desired slenderizing lines.

Stoutness is not a barrier to good looks nor to good dressing—stout women may now dress in the latest mode and look slender, in one of these "Mignonette" dresses.

We have had such splendid success with them that we have secured a large stock for the benefit of those who have not already procured one.

"Mignonette" is a heavy, clinging material quite like tricotee but newer and of a closer weave. And it doesn't wrinkle —you can roll it up and put it in a traveling bag with the happy thought that it will come up smiling at the end of the journey. It is just the fabric to adapt itself best to the long coat effects and straight tunic styles which are most becoming to large women.

In navy, black and brown with just enough trimming to relieve their severity, these dresses are all ready to put right on

Colorado Mining Claim Sold for Unpaid Taxes

IDAHO SPRINGS, Colo.—The story of how a mining claim, originally purchased for fifty cents at a public sale, was later sold for $200,000, has already yielded several million dollars' worth of ore, was told here by Nathan S. Hurd, pioneer mining man.

Hurd, who is eighty-six years old, has made and lost several fortunes in the Colorado mining industry. He is now retired and lives in Denver.

The story is of the 'Old Whale' mine, located just outside of Idaho Springs, and the first chapter was written back in the early 60's when a group of young men, under the leadership of prospectors, began to mine from the veins of the old mine, crossed the plains in ox teams, on horseback and even afoot.

In 1868 I left Denver in the wagon of the newly discovered gold mine at Spanish Bar, about two miles from where Idaho Springs is now situated," Hurd said. "There was Colonel John J. Dumont, later a prominent mining man of this state."

It was customary in those days, when we made our own laws, to have mining districts whenever a new claim occurred. The first persons reaching the camp after the original discovery could stake off a 200-foot square, adjoining the original claim. The next could procure adjacent claims, and so on.

Then, as the camp grew, and it was necessary to support some sort of government these claims were made of. Of course, many of them could prove to be valueless and the original claimant would abandon them to be sold for taxes.

SOLD FOR TAXES

It was at such a sale held in the case of an old claim that I bought the claim that later became a part of the 'Old Whale' mine. The owner had abandoned it, believing it was too far from the original strike to contain pay ore. Nobody would bid on it so I finally offered a half dollar. The bid wasn't raised, so the claim was knocked down to me for fifty cents.

"A few months later I did some work on the claim during my spare time and uncovered what seemed to be paying traces of ore. Colonel Dumont looked the claim over and offered me $1,200 for it, which I was glad to accept."

"Colonel Dumont developed the claim, found rich ore, bought some adjoining ground and a few years later sold the whole business for $200,000."

"Think of it!" Hurd exclaimed, "two hundred thousand dollars for a claim that I paid fifty cents for."

"But that's not all," he concluded. "Since that time $2,000,000 worth of ore has been taken from the Old Whale mine, and offers of several million dollars for it have been refused."

Hurd declared that similar sales and discoveries were not uncommon in the early days of mining in the State.

Condition of Man and Woman Puzzles Cleveland Police

CLEVELAND — (By United Press) — Police today are trying to solve the mystery of the loss of memory of two persons who are unable to remember their actions for days.

One is a well-dressed woman about 35 years of age, who applied for shelter at the Y. W. C. A. last night. When asked her name, she replied: "Miller", but was unable to tell where she lived. She is at City hospital.

The other, a man, was identified as Earl Lippert, 28, of this city. He entered the East Cleveland police station and asked the sergeant who he was.

Noting that the man's hat and coat were new and that his description tallied with that of Lippert, the sergeant asked him if that was his name.

With the mention of his name, Lippert's face took on a new expression and he said he was the man, but added: "I don't know where I am, or where I have been."

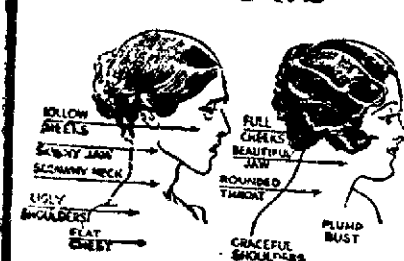

He was taken to East Cleveland hospital. Lippert recognized his wife and baby but questioned failed to bring any return of memory to him.

Physicians believe his condition was caused by an attack of sleeping sickness.

inches tall, weighs 125 pounds, and has brown hair. She was wearing a blue dress, trimmed with red, a brown coat with velvet collar, black straw hat and patent leather shoes.

Your hair will welcome Blue Devil and fluff right up.

TO FILL OUT HOLLOWS

If you are hollow-cheeked, sunken-chested and generally run-down and want to round out your face and figure to pleasing and normal proportions you will find this simple test well worth trying: First, weigh yourself and measure yourself. Next take Vitamin—two tablets with every meal. Then weigh and measure yourself again each week and continue taking Vitamin regularly until you are satisfied with your weight and energy. Vitamin mixes with what you eat, helps it to digest and supplies your body with that health-giving, strength-building nourishment—the vitamins—which is destroyed in the cooking of so many everyday foods. A woman who had been thin for years and was down to 91 pounds took Vitamin and soon gained 21 pounds. Many others have increased their weight to normal in only a short time. Results are absolutely guaranteed or money refunded. Be sure to remember the name VITAMON. All good druggists have it in stock.—Adv.

Tom Mix Appears Well in "The Untamed," a Very Unusual Action Picture

"Food For Scandal" and "The Killers" Approved—Average Program at Orpheum

(By ESTHER WAGNER)
TOM MIX never had a better vehicle than "The Untamed," his latest release now appearing at the Orpheum. The story is a bit unusual, a theme and handling. It is guaranteed to please any male audience and in most instances the opposite sex. The story is all about a man who has a law but his own, a horse that saved him from a bad dog who was the man's best friend. Of course towards the end of the picture a lady comes in and plays by Pauline Stark who is delightful and the usual romance results. Nothing exceptional, but good picture for the zero, Mr. Mix.

The scenery is wonderful, the photography is fine, and everybody in the cast is good, especially the dog. The little mix is a popular star, and is appearing at the Sigma.

A CLEVELAND in a smart comedy-drama is "Food For Scandal," in which Wanda Hawley is starred. She is a snappy personality and would be decidedly good looking if she knew how to do her hair. The matter of coiffure, however, should not influence you greatly. In the picture this little lady comes to the city to win fame and money in a church choir, but she lands on the stage which, however, does not keep her long. Gone to the city before her is Watt Dinwiddie played by none other than Harrison Ford. Watt is having a hard time. He knows the law but there seems to be no one who is anxious to have him prove this fact. Besides, all this he knows that he little blonde he left behind at home with him for various reasons. He doesn't know she is in town until he sees a big splash in the paper about a noted chorus girl. Well, these two young and exceedingly likable people become involved in the divorce proceedings of a couple who really don't want to be divorced and after a few unlooked for angles we have them in the happy certainty that they will wed, etc.

And so we see "Food For Scandal" is a happy little offering with popular stars at their best. It means take it in while you're making the rounds. "Food For Scandal" is appearing at the Faurot.

THOSE of you who follow the Red Book will remember the serial "The Killers" by Stewart Edwards White and if so you will enjoy the film version of the story as being presented at the Lyric today. "The Killers" thrilled me when I read it. On the screen it misses fire to a certain degree but it's still a thriller. The most interesting character in the story is Henry Hooper, and the famous villains of history, like Long John Silver and Professor Moriarty. "The Killers" fame, had nothing on this modern villain when it came to devilry. His lonely ranch in Arizona was a veritable paradise in the desert, but everything within its walls had to obey the will of the master or growl; they were no more. If a bird twittered in the bright sunshine, it had to do as he said, for the old man's scouts were even watchful for anything alive that disturbed the peace and quiet. And if a frog croaked (hat's what they do, isn't it?) it was quietly picked up and disposed of. All of which gives you an idea of the kind of a villain we have to deal with this trip.

He held two prisoners in this desert fortress, a girl and a small boy, a cowboy from a neighboring ranch wandered in, found the lay of the land, escaped death miraculously and effected a rescue, but not before all kinds of thrilling things happen and a half dozen or more get killed.

The cast is one that is practically unknown, but it seems to me that they could not well be improved upon. Frank Campeau is the villain; Clair Adams the heroine, little Frankie Lee, the child actor, and Jack Conway, the hero. Scenery's beautiful and with the exception of a few loose ends, you'll find "The Killers" a picture that will hold you in your seats until the last flicker.

The Lyric is featuring the production today.

"The Orpheum"

THE bill being presented at the Orpheum the last half of this week is an average program, not nearly as good as we have been seeing at the Market-st. playhouse during the last few weeks. In fact, there are only three worthy offerings.

Henrietta De Serris' sculpture models do wonderfully well, presenting a series of living pictures. Their makeup and costumes give them the appearance of stone images and they present many famous pictures, including Abe Lincoln and George Washington.

The opener, a slack-wire acrobatic act, is good, with the masculine half of the company performing feats of endurance and strength that are remarkable.

Joe and Agnes Little have a musical act that is one of the brightest of the program. Harp selections, violin solos and vocal numbers make up their act.

Button and Tarry offer songs and dances that are the usual round and a line of repartee that isn't so good.

Patrick and Otto have a humorous dialogue that is funny in spots. Kane and Fouri, billed as Cuban dancers, offer a series of wild dances and popular songs, with a splendid feature dance by the gentleman of the company. Tonight is amateur night at the Orpheum.

Barbara Castleton, of the movies has arrived in New York to play the leading role in "Muffled Drums." Jean Calhoun will play a leading part in Charles Ray's new movie written by Bob Wagner.

Betty Blithe appears prominently in the new Fox movie spectacle "The Queen of Sheba." Marcuerite Maxwell recruited from the "Ziegfeld Follies," appears with Mildred Harris in "Playthings of Desire."

AT THE MAJESTIC "Nothing But the Truth" is appearing at the Majestic today, with Taylor Holmes in the leading role. Rudolph Valentino has a leading Spanish role in the Metro movie of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse."

THE PARADISE MYSTERY

By J. S. FLETCHER

Once more Bryce paused—and the two listeners showed their attention by complete silence.

"Now we come to the question—was Bryce poisoned?" asked Bryce. "For poisoned he was," said Bryce. "We go back to the theory and supposition once more. I haven't the least doubt that the hydrocyanic acid which caused his death was taken by him in a pill—that was in that box which they found on him. Mitochondria, and the rest of it, was a red herring. But that particular pill, the precisely similar in appearance, could be made up of the same ingredients which were in the other pills. It was probably the poisoned pill which contained the poison—in solution, of course. The poison would melt almost as soon as the pill was swallowed—and death would result instantaneously. Col-well, you may say, was condemned to death when he put that box of pills in his waistcoat pocket. It was mere chance, mere luck, as to when the exact moment of death came to him. There had been six pills in that box—there were five left. So Col-well picked out the poisoned pill—first! It might have been delayed till the sixth dose, you see—but he was doomed!"

Mitochondria showed a desire to speak and Bryce paused. "What about what Ransford said before the coroner?" asked Mitochondria. "He demanded certain information about the post-mortem, you know, which, he said, ought to have shown that there was nothing poisonous in those pills."

"Pooh!" exclaimed Bryce contemptuously. "More bluff! Of such a pill as that I've described there'd be no trace but the sugar coating—and the poison. I tell you, I haven't the least doubt that was how the poison was administered. It was easy. And—who is there that would know how easily it could be administered but—a medical man?"

Mitochondria and Jettison exchanged glances. Then Jettison leaned forward to Bryce. "So your theory is that Ransford got rid of both Braden and Col-well—murdered both of them, in fact," he suggested. "Do I understand that's what it really comes to—plain words?"

"Not quite," replied Bryce. "I don't say that Bryce meant to kill Braden—my notion is that they met, had an altercation, probably a struggle, and that Braden lost his life in it. But as regards Col-well—" "Don't forget!" interrupted Mitochondria. "Varnor swore that he saw Braden flung thru that doorway! Flung out! He saw a hand."

"For everything that Varnor could prove to the contrary," answered Bryce. "The hand might have been stretched out to pull Braden back. No—I think there may have been accident in that affair. But, as regards Col-well—murder, with-out doubt—deliberate!"

"He lighted another cigarette, with the air of a man who had spoken his mind, and Mitochondria, realizing that he had said all he had to say, got up from his seat."

"Well—it's all very interesting and very clever, doctor," he said, glancing at Jettison. "And we shall keep it all in mind. Of course, you've called all this over with Harker? I should like to know what he has to say. Now that you've told us who he is, I suppose we can talk to him."

"You'll have to wait a few days, then," said Bryce. "He's gone to town—by the last train tonight—on this business. I've sent him. I have some information today about Ransford's whereabouts during the time of disappearance and I've commissioned Harker to examine into it. When I hear what he's found out, I'll let you know."

"You're taking some trouble," remarked Mitochondria.

"I've told you the reason," answered Bryce.

Mitochondria hesitated a little; then, with a motion of his head toward the door, beckoned Jettison to follow him.

"All right," he said. "There's

HER OWN CAREER

By PHYLLIS PHILLIPS

GWENDA CONFIDES IN FEDYA

"Everything is just as you last saw it," he said lightly, as he ushered Gwenda into the studio and switched on the lights. "I have not been here for three weeks now, as you know, so the dust must be thick on our painting."

"Did you—did you have a bad time while you were away?" asked Gwenda with a note of pity in her voice.

"I think that it needs no telling, Gwenda. I think that you can imagine what that wife of mine would make me go thru and suffer while she had me with her! She is a most brutal type of woman and was, when I first married her, but it was that quality that drew me to her at that time, strange to say. I was such a painfully young idealist I delighted in kissing the hand that slapped me and the lips that hurt as they rested me. We men, my dear, go thru very many different periods and phases in our lives. Natalie nearly killed me on many occasions and yet I clung to her up to the time she allowed me to see just how and where she was deceiving me. Then my love turned to hate and deep disgust, as you may imagine. She had me trained and tamed for life. I imagine her rage when she awoke to find me gone, bag and baggage, one fine morning."

"How terrible an experience for a young man. How more than terrible," murmured Gwenda sadly.

"And it is for the rage and disappointment that she followed me here to America, and has been making me pay for ever since," he continued with a curl of his lips, as he thought of the experiences of the past. "There have been times when I wanted to kill her, when I have been goaded to the point of madness by the very sight of her, but, thank God, I have always mastered this desire."

"Why don't you put Natalie into a good sanatorium and then get away somewhere where she will never be able to find you, or to torment you any more?" said Gwenda, throwing herself wearily into the large arm chair which Fedya had drawn up before the fire for her.

"Easier said than done. Besides, you don't know the cunning of that crazy mind of hers. She has always been able to track me down—somehow, and I have had to pay all the more bitterly for my short periods of freedom, believe me," answered Fedya.

"You must know that your wife paid us a visit," said Gwenda, and at his exclamation of horror she until he cried to her to go on with it. In a few words as possible she told him of Natalie's midnight visit to their studio and of Fern's flight, as well as her own. Also of her encounter with Natalie.

"My God!" gasped the man, his face gone ashy at her words. "She means to do you a bodily harm. She will do you harm, for I know that woman—how I know her!"

For that little

household burn

There is nothing better than Resinol to relieve the smart and sting. Its gentle medication soothes while it heals. Apply freely but gently to the affected surface, so as not to disturb the injured skin. Then place a light bandage over the burn to keep out the air. Resinol Ointment has the healing—an important point—as broken skin means an opportunity for germs to enter and if they do they often cause painful and dangerous inflammation.

Your druggist sells Resinol in two sizes.

Allen-Go Affected by Decision of State Attorney

Child Welfare workers and over one state are interested in the decision of Attorney General Allen-Go, rendered Thursday, in which he declared the will of the late George H. Marsh, Van Wert's invalid, because it was executed less than a year before Marsh's death.

The will provides for the building of a school for the orphan children of Van Wert's estate. Allen-Go would profit by the decision, but not the orphan children.

Allen-Go's decision is based on the fact that the will was executed less than a year before Marsh's death.

POLICE CAPTURE POKER BANDIT

One of Pair of Robbers Taken at Ohio City

STAGE HOLDUP AT WAPAK

Nearly $5,000 Secured at William
Weber Home

Confessing that he was the "master mind" in planning and executing a holdup of a poker party at the residence of William Weber on Harrison street in Wapakoneta early Thursday night, in which $1,000 to $2,000 in cash and $4,000 in jewelry was secured from ten men surprised at a card party, David Whiteford, 19, a tall youth, claiming Chicago as his home, was arrested in the Chicago & Erie R. R. depot at Ohio City at 1 a. m. today, by Sheriff Betts of Mercer county and Sheriff Sells of Van Wert county.

Whiteford had $290 in currency on his person when arrested, but the bulk of the loot was taken from the Weber home, where he spent part of the day Thursday in St. Mary's, where he met another young fellow, whose name he did not give, and whose home he did not give, and who was the robber at Wapakoneta, having been informed that a game was to be staged at the Weber home that night.

The robbery occurred about 7 p. m. having secured from men who had been frequenting the Weber home to play poker, the necessary amount to run a game, the door was opened to them. With faces covered by masks, they ordered the men to throw up their hands and stand with faces against the wall.

The youthful robbers went about the task of relieving their victims of money, diamonds, watches, rings, etc., in a very deliberate manner. One of the blinds at a window had not been drawn and a woman residing nearby saw what was transpiring at the Weber home. She notified police and Night Officers Fred Houtz and William Woehrlie responded.

They were not told that a holdup was being staged; only that they were wanted at the Weber place. When Houtz entered, he looked into the muzzle of a gun and was forced to put up his hands, along with the others. Houtz was not robbed of $37 he had in his pocket. As he entered the Weber home, the robbers were endeavoring to force Tom Custie, a Celina man, to open a safe in which there was $2,000. One of them struck Custie with a skittle, but he refused to open the safe.

BLINDS OF OFFICERS

MARCH VICTOR RECORDS

—AT—
Rowland's

COME IN AND HEAR THEM.

Officer Woehrlie, who remained outside, ran across the street to the city power house to secure help, he said. When he returned, he met Officer Houtz outside. After the men disappeared, presumably in an automobile, Officer Houtz jumped thru a window, but his quarry had gone. How the robbers made the trip from Wapakoneta to Celina is not known, but it is supposed they used a high powered Cadillac car. Sheriff Betts was notified at Celina and a number of officers placed on the case. Whiteford was seen at the Ellis hotel, where he was endeavoring to secure a taxicab to go to Ohio City, to board an Erie train for Chicago, due in Ohio City at 1:20 a. m. CAUGHT AT OHIO CITY.

He eluded the officers at Celina, but Sheriff Betts started for Ohio City, meeting Sheriff Sells of Van Wert county there. They found Whiteford at the depot. He was identified as "Butch" Ward and Tom Custie of Celina, who accompanied Betts. It is stated by police that Custie was in charge of the poker game at Weber's place when the holdup occurred.

According to statement by Sheriff "Long Bob" Ewing, Whiteford confessed in the Auglaize county jail at Wapakoneta Friday morning, to the part he played in the robbery.

BAD CHECKS ARE PASSED BY GIRL

Worthless checks totalling more than $200 were given to Lima merchants for merchandise Thursday by Margaret Laughrey, sixteen-year-old Kenton school girl, who now is in the hands of juvenile authorities awaiting the arrival of her parents.

She was picked up on the street Friday morning by police officers after an appeal had been sent to headquarters by her parents, who live on a farm near Kenton.

The girl has been living with her grandmother at Kenton and attended high school there. She would give officers no reason for her coming here and writing the checks except that she was not satisfied with the way she had been treated at Kenton. Questions brought forth explanation of nothing more serious than discipline and the fact that she was not allowed to do things she desired.

WILL PROSECUTE FOR SHOW ADS

Mayor Avers "Somebody is Going to Answer"

COURT FINDING AWAITED

Action to Enjoin Interference With Marcus Show

While both sides were waiting for Judge F. C. Becker of the Allen county court to hand down a decision in the injunction suit of Manager Lou's Cunningham of the Faurot theatre against Mayor Frank A. Burkhardt to restrain him from interfering with the performance of the "Marcus Show of 1920" Saturday night, Mayor Burkhardt Friday announced that immediate steps towards the prosecution of persons responsible for the ads of the show appearing on bill boards and in newspapers in Lima will be taken.

PROSECUTION THREAT
The mayor said that he is not positive just who was to blame but that he has taken the matter up with the city solicitor and that "somebody is going to answer for this."

"Blind it," said the Mayor with vehemence. "I am not going to stand for such vulgar language and pictures being displayed in Lima. Friday morning's mail brought another mass of petitions from individuals and organizations in Lima urging me to use my influence to stop the show," the Mayor said. "Up until this time I have not had one single request to allow it a show," he added.

City Solicitor Garling said Friday morning that the Mayor had informed him of his intention to prosecute those responsible for the ads "I have done nothing as yet," said Garling. A hearing on Manager Cunningham's application for an injunction, restraining Mayor Burkhardt from interfering with the show, was held in the Allen county court Thursday night and lasted until midnight, when Judge Becker announced that a decision would be given Friday.

SHOW IS DISCUSSED
The show was discussed pro and con and resulted in a general debate on just what is and what is not detrimental to public morals. The plaintiff introduced many witnesses who testified that the show is clean and Mayor Burkhardt introduced petitions from individuals and organizations of the city asking him to halt the show. The mayor testified that the advertisements at least were immoral, vulgar and degenerating. The defense cited as a precedent a case in Toledo where an injunction was denied, the same show causing the controversy there. Comedy reigned supreme thruout the hearing.

France's national debt is fifty per cent of the population.

FEED YOUR CORN

Corn is selling today for less than it cost the farmer to produce it. There is a great yield and large acreage. It has not yet reached the lowest point.

Brood Sows and feeders are scarce. There was never a better time to realize a good profit by investing in a Good Hampshire Brood Sow than right now. Hampshires are gaining popularity among farmers and feeders, faster than any other breed. They are commanding a higher price from the packer than any other breed. At the greatest Fat Stock Show in the World (The Chicago International) they have won the Grand Champion Car Lot Price, three years in succession, selling from $2.25 to $6.50 per hundred more than any other breed.

Get a Hampshire Brood Sow. Start right. Raise the hog for which the packer is willing to pay the highest price.

We are selling forty head of Brood Sows and Giltts at our farm three miles north of Weston, Ohio, Monday, March 7, 1921. Sale held under cover. Plenty of seats.

An offering of excellent breeding and quality.

Write us for further information and catalog of sale.

BILLS KILLED BY WILSON VETO

Signature to Immigration and Army Measures Refused

WASHINGTON — (By Associated Press) — Two of the most important bills passed by congress at this session were killed by the pocket veto of President Wilson.

The president refused to sign the bill restricting immigration during the period from April 1, 1921 to July 1, 1922 to three per cent of the aliens here in 1910.

The pocket veto also caught the army appropriation bill, which provided for an army of 156,666 during the next fiscal year. The soldier hospital bill was signed. This makes $18,600,000 immediately available for hospital construction.

MUTT AND JEFF—AT THE INAUGURAL CEREMONIES IN WASHINGTON TODAY—

SHORT STAYINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Jones had come to that important part of marriage—their honeymoon.

Mr. Jones, who by the way, detested work, and had a strong belief that to sit in front of the fire and watch other people do it, was the best thing in the world, was at the hotel named "The Hotel."

"But why all these names?" asked his wife.

"Because," replied Mrs. Jones, "if you look at the hotel you will find that they spell 'Work' in reverse, which means up to it, will take it better than the others."

Johnny was given a surprise party and a number of games were played. Among them was a game called "Holliday."

While they were playing Johnny's mother came to the door. She noticed that one of the children was not playing, so she said, "Why don't you let Harry play?"

"But, mamma, cried Johnny, 'we are playing Holliday' and he was all up."

Two boys were enumerating the different holidays in order in which they are observed, and when Lincoln's birthday and Washington's came to their notice, one spoke up and said: "Strange, isn't it, that two such great and wonderful men should be born on holidays?"

"Smith, need have brought a new car," remarked Jones.

"What makes you think that?" asked Brown.

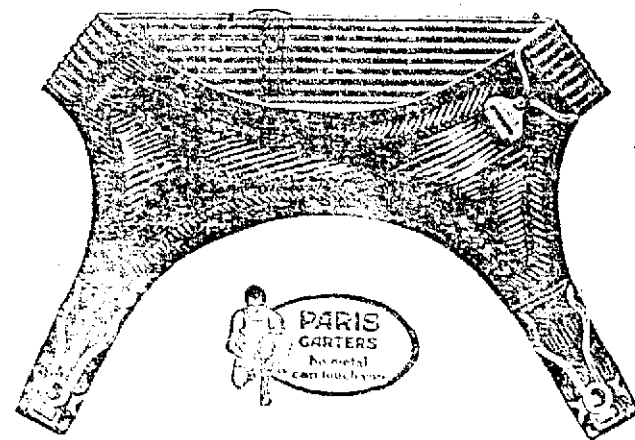

"He used to talk about the blank-black automobiles," replied Jones.

"But now he is talking about the blank-black for nothing."
